

Depart, Depart (The Lady Mary's Galliard)

Alexander Scott

$\text{♩} = 100$

1. De- parte, de - parte, a - las I must de - part From her that hath my heart With heart full

8

1. De- parte, de - parte, a - las I must de - part From her that hath my heart With heart full

8

1. De- parte, de - parte, a - las I must de - part From her that hath my heart With heart full

8

1. De- parte, de - parte, a - las I must de - part From her that hath my heart With heart full

6

sore A-gainst my will in-deed And can find no re-meid I wait the pains of deid Can do no

8

sore A-gainst my will in - deed And can find no re-meid I wait the pains of deid Can do no

8

sore A-gainst my will in-deed And can find no re-meid I wait the pains of deid Can do no

8

sore A-gainst my will in-deed And can find no re-meid I wait the pains of deid Can do no more.

10

8

more.

8

more.

8

more.

Now must I go alas
From sight of her sweet face
The ground of all my grace
And sovereign
What chance that may fall me
Shall I ne'er merry be Unto the time I see
My sweet again.

I go and wait nowhere
I wander here and there
I weep and such right sair
With painis smart
Now must I pass away
In wild and wilsum way
Alas this woefull day
We should depart.

Adieu my own sweet thing
My joy and comforting
My mirth and solacing
Of earthly gloir.
Fair well my lady bright
And my remembrance right
Fair well and have good night
I say no more.