You'll need to pick a username (you can change this later), and you can choose to run Discord inside your browser or to download the full app. We recommend getting the full app, as this opens up a whole bunch of functionality, as well as fixing a few bugs that can make life hard for new users.

Once you're setup to use Discord, then follow the next set of instructions (below) to join the Southron Gaard channels and learn about 'push to talk'.

More info about the Lochac Discord server and how to use it is available on the Lochac Masonry site: <https://masonry.lochac.sca.org/services/lochac-discord/>

Once you've joined, go to the rank-request-channel and enter ?rank Southron Gaard – this will join you to the Southron Gaard text and voice channels.

The Southron Gaard voice channel is set up as 'push to talk'. This means you must push (and hold down) a keyboard button to activate your microphone. To check what button this is set to, go to your User Settings (found in the cog icon by your username) and select the 'Voice & Video' menu. The Shortcut field lists the key binding, which you can change by clicking on the keyboard icon to the right of the Shortcut field:
