Their Excellencies Speak

Unto the Populace of Southron Gaard do we send greetings.

It has been a fine weekend. There was a wedding between two members of our populace: a most courteous and capable gentleman, Edmund Strangeways, relatively new to the barony and Mistress Antonia, beloved of Southron Gaard, experienced, long a pillar of arts and services in this barony, particularly in clothing and, of course, feast cooking. It was an honour and great pleasure to attend. We wish Edmund and Antonia all possible happiness in their future together.

We also attended the Spring Hunt in Wildmor. It was a beautiful venue, finely catered. The people, were as always, friendly and welcoming. Particular thanks are due to Aveline, Leonhart, and for all their hard work and making Our visit as early and simple as possible. We wish only that we could have stayed longer than a night.

In two days spent seeing and enjoying the company of any people I regret I did not have a chance to discuss a series of issues that had been raised with us regarding negative personal interactions and perceptions of custom within the Barony.

These matters are always difficult to raise as well as to address. Our Society enjoins anyone who has a personal issue with another member to approach them in the first instance and attempt to seek clarification. Misunderstandings when no one has genuinely malign intentions can create long-lasting rifts. The damage caused by infelicitous expression of opinion, a common occurrence within the SCA, is best avoided by promptly seeking out the person who upset you to find out what they really meant and telling them how you feel.

This can require giving the other person the benefit of the doubt when, because of what they have said, you do not want to. But we must remember what we want out such a conversation - to move forward and avoid future problems. You may not become intimates by such methods. But we have seen people journey from antipathy and indifference to friendship and mutual support, even becoming members of the same household, by being prepared to give each other a second chance.

Acceptance and the avoidance of factionalism is all we hope for. Anything more is a gift from fate. Allowing resentments or temper or even the conviction that you are in the right dictate the course of an exchange can lead to making enemies needlessly. You need not give up the belief you are right to try to come to an understanding if you are prepared to say you do not wish things to be as they are if there is antipathy or ill will.

Timeliness is important. We need to approach the person we have issues with when our memories of the event are still fresh, and when theirs may be. With the passing of time our emotions will influence how we remember what happened, and our memories will be less accurate.

If we do not approach them in a timely manner, they may not even remember the issue in question. They may also ask, not unreasonably, 'Why bring this up now?'

Choosing a time or forum that is public for the airing of the issue may feel like a good step towards transparency - a virtue in any interaction - but may also invite accusations of being disingenuous, if it could have been resolved privately and without invent the risk of embarrassing the other party or making it necessary for them to explain themselves to others before they have had a chance to explain themselves to you, the injured party.

That said, the people who upset you in the first place are equally obliged by Society custom to ask themselves, 'What did I say to cause this? Even to avoid my time being wasted in the future - how can I avoid it happening again?'

More importantly, they need also to bear in mind that if someone feels intimidated by them because of their perceived seniority, it will be hard for In service to the populace, Crown and Kingdom

Oswyn and Isabel Maria

Baron and Baroness of Southron Gaard

them to come forward to express themselves. Reluctance to come forward can mean a lot of time passes before they do.

In short, senior members of the society must be mindful of what they say to others, even when trying to give helpful advice. For newer members, being able to front up and say what you feel can be part of the transition to becoming a senior member of the society and a potential leader.

Seneschal's Comments

Greetings All,

When it rains it pours, and right now it's a busy time for many of us.

My thanks to THL Aveline and Wildmoor for hosting the Spring Hunt. This was a fun, back to the basics, camping event which largely involved wearing as many layers of garb as I could find and relaxing around the campfire. As usual the hospitality of Wildmoor was first class and much fun was had by all. I think I did my bit on the hunt to ensure the people won't starve in the coming months, although I never did sight the mythical English Wild Turkey which apparently leaves large, quite distinguishable tracks throughout Europe. No matter.

The next couple of weeks are also busy with the Hororata Highland Games display on the 7th of November. Even if you aren't part of the event crew for that I'd recommend coming along (you'll have to pay your own way to get in) and check out the event as it really is a good show. This year we have a large number of people putting on an even bigger display, and are making a big effort to turn interested people into recruits. The week after Golden Flight we will have an A&S practice specifically to discuss topics for newcomers and tell them about all the wonderful things we do. More information on that will follow on the email lists.

The very next weekend we have Golden Flight – Harald's Last Hunt, stewarded by Lord Ceallach. It's no secret I'm a fan of camping events, as they really do offer a chance to let go of the real world for a couple of days and immerse one's self. I'm looking forward to the competitions the stewards have planned.

Once that's done we have a clear run to 12th Night Coronation and Canterbury Faire, which I for one am grateful for as there are always too many projects and not enough time for. I hope your progress is better than mine, and if not I trust you'll at least raise a

Kind regards,

THL Richard d'Allier

Seneschal of Southron Gaard

glass with me at the event to the wonderful invention that is procrastination.

The Baronial Poll has now closed and I'd like to thank Lord Lowrens for taking over the official duties required for this. I'd further like to express my thanks to all of the other candidates for putting the names forward to take on this challenging role. It was great to have three couples in the running this time as the last two times have been uncontested, so this tells me that more people are getting settled and looking forward to the future of the Barony and are willing and keen to be leading figures in that future. We need this as a group, but we also need more people coming through to take on other roles. I realise that for many, running an event or taking on a project is a scary prospect, and this is only worsened if other people have had bad experiences doing so in the past, or received negative feedback. It's important for everyone to ensure that feedback is made in a way that is constructive, but it's also important to take feedback on board and learn from it. At the end of the day, it all boils down to talking. Talk with people about your ideas for activities or events as it's important to get different perspectives and work it all together into a viable plan. Once the activity or event is over, talk with people about how it went and what could be done to improve things next time. Even if you don't plan to do anything similar again, the feedback could be useful information that you could pass on to someone else. Look with satisfaction upon the things that people said went well, and take on board the things they said could be improved. Doing so is the only way we grow.

Lastly, my time as Seneschal is drawing to a close and I'll be stepping down in a few months regardless of the outcome of the Baronial poll. If you are interested in taking on this office please email me, the Baron and Baroness, and Kingdom Seneschal with your application. If you are considering applying but have questions about the office then please get in touch so that I can tell you how marvellous and easy a job it is.

From the Officers

Arts and Sciences for November

There's a scheduled class / session fortnightly (ish) and the other week is open to bring along whatever you're working on to do it in company, musicians to practice, dancers to come dance, and officers to write reports and Faire planning to happen. This month...

November 1      Bling up your feast table – dags, placemats, runners and napkins.

November 8      BYO project, may be a class if someone volunteers. There has been some mention of heraldry: watch the list and Facebook page for updates.

November 15      Golden flight – no session this weekend.

November 22      Come Meet Us (and hopefully Have a Go) day – following on from the Hororata Highland Games, this is intended to be a day (10-2) showing off who we are and what we do. Inside we'll set up some tables for research, costuming and crafts, outside the assorted martial pursuits. Please feel free to come along, show and tell what you do, bring a friend. More info to follow, or contact Agnes.

November 29      BYO project

December schedule still being worked on, and likely to be light what with us all having Festive Engagements. One session will be patterning out pieces for a chess set, one an end of year games day / revel, and possibly a class or two. Canterbury Faire is almost really 2 weeks away at this point, so no doubt some frantic sewing! See the next FTT and / or the website.

Anything requested by the populace that can be made to happen.

Resource of the Month

The BBC History magazine / History Extra:

For the past couple of years I've been a subscriber to the BBC History magazine. This is a monthly magazine that covers all kinds of history, not just pre-seventeenth century, and usually with some kind of connection to the UK, although not exclusively. It's a great source of information on all sorts of topics from crime to kings and while it would never be in-depth enough to be considered "research" it's a great source for broadening your understanding of history and inspiring you to find out a bit more. As well as the magazine itself there's the History Extra website where many snippets and short stories are posted, weekly podcast and various social media sites.

Of course like most magazines it can be a bit expensive to subscribe to. However you can get it for free from the library, either in print or through the Zinio emagazine app. The podcasts are free and are great for downloading and listening to during your commute, housework or dog walking. My favourite features are:

- Feature articles on various topics
- The "History Essay" – where the study of history is discussed by an eminent historian
- Book reviews, both fiction and non-fiction
- Recipe of the month – rated for taste and ease
- Podcast interviews where a historian author is interviewed by another historian author: these have been very interesting.

* The following public libraries include BBC History Magazine

- Christchurch City Libraries: print and emagazine
- Dunedin Public Library: print and emagazine
- Hurunui Libraries: emagazine
- Selwyn Libraries: print

SCA (NZ) Inc. Membership

There are two different types of membership available to event participants in New Zealand:

Subscribing Membership:

Grants full rights of participation in the SCA (including voting, entering Crown Tournaments, holding office and affiliate membership with overseas branches).

Subscribing membership also includes a subscription to Pegasus, the Lochac Kingdom Newsletter in either electronic or paper form.

1 Year with E-Pegasus	$ 15.00
3 Years with E-Pegasus	$ 30.00
1 Year with Pegasus	$ 45.00
3 years with Pegasus	$105.00

Event Membership:

For all non-members aged 18 years or over attending an event.

Event membership lasts for the duration of that event only and is not sufficient to hold office or fight in Crown Tournament etc.

If the event has a cost, and it is not held by a College, the levy will be charged.

Per event	$ 2.00
